THE NEGOTIATION OF KEY MERGER & ACQUISITION CLAUSES: Getting the Deal Done

Emma Scotney, James Sippe, Kanaga Dharmananda (eds)

Written by an experienced team of practitioners, this book provides an insight into merger and acquisition agreements in Australia. It addresses the negotiation of key clauses in M&A transactions from start to completion; detailing the typical underlying commercial considerations and critical issues behind the identified clauses. It then sets out standard or appropriate approaches to such clauses. The book serves two purposes: a conceptual purpose, to show how a complex legal transaction can be traced to underlying commercial considerations; and a pedagogic purpose, to highlight the underlying structure of an important transactional instrument: the M&A contract. This will be an important resource for company directors, lawyers, bankers, and students.

THE APPELLATE JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS IN AUSTRALIA, 2e

Dean Mildren

The second edition of this well-received work describes and discusses the principles of law and practice which guide Australian appellate courts at all levels. In addition, it deals with the jurisdiction and powers of appellate courts, and what alternative remedies are available if there is no right of appeal. Appellate courts also have original jurisdiction, and this is likewise considered. Civil appeals and criminal appeals are dealt with separately because, although there are commonalities between them, criminal appeals in particular give rise to different considerations. Other chapters cover appeals from military tribunals, the new Federal Circuit and Family Court of Australia and the Federal Court.

NEW AND UPCOMING

THE VICTORIAN PLANNING SYSTEM: Practice, Problems and Prospects, 2e Stephen Rowley

Essential reading for all Victorian planning professionals. Rowley's book demystifies the planning system in accessible language and with an engaging narrative. Updates to the second edition include the finalised Plan Melbourne 2017-2050, 'Smart Planning' program, integrated Planning Policy Framework, revisions to residential development provisions and the Environment Protection Act, among others. Other new areas of discussion in this edition include planning in growth areas, biodiversity offsetting for native vegetation removal and Aboriginal heritage.

AUSTRALIAN PUBLIC HEALTH LAW: Contemporary Issues and Challenges Belinda Bennett, Ian Freckelton (eds)

This book explores the changing scope of public health law. In 26 chapters, written by leading academics, this innovative collection analyses the role of law in supporting health and safety for the community. It explores the intersections between public health law and human rights, analysing issues in genomics, access to medicines, mental health law and indigenous health equity. Other topics addressed include: food, alcohol, tobacco and drug regulation; environmental law, communicable diseases and workplace health and safety law.

50 HUMAN RIGHTS CASES THAT CHANGED AUSTRALIA Lucy Geddes, Hamish McLachlan

Written by two practising human rights lawyers, this book looks at Australia's 50 most significant human rights cases. These cases range from the seminal land rights case of Mabo and the celebrated freedom of speech cases of the 1990s, to lesser-known earlier cases on civil liberties and criminal procedure and more recent advances in the area of LGBTIQ+ rights, environmental rights, and the rights of people with disabilities. Each case summary explains the facts, the issues and the outcome of the case, and also contains key quotes from the judgment, commentary situating the case in its social and political context, and critical analysis of the case's impact.

THE AUSTRALIAN CLASS ACTION: A 30-Year Perspective Michael Legg, James Metzger (eds)

Class actions are an especially controversial form of litigation. They are both loved and loathed. This book, with chapters written by leading Australian jurists and scholars, reflects on the major themes and controversies which have arisen during the 30 years following the enactment of modern class action procedures. Topics examined include the initial objectives, such as access to justice and the efficient resolution of multiple claims, and how the key requirements of procedural fairness, open justice and finality apply in the class action context. It also explores the role of lawyers and litigation funders as well as examining the class action through the lenses of law and economics, comparative law and politics.

LAW OF CO-OFFENDING IN AUSTRALIA: Principles Applicable to Co-accused Trials

Peter Lowe

Law of Co-offending in Australia is about the practice, procedure and legal aspects of joint trials and how such trials differ in important respects from the trial of a sole accused. Trial fairness, the foundation stone on which the Australian criminal justice process rests, is rarely more challenged than when viewed through the lens of a trial of multiple accused. The focus of the book is how each of the Australian jurisdictions deal with these issues affecting co-accused both under common law and under statute. The book is intended for practitioners of criminal law, both prosecution and defence, as well as the judiciary.

CASE MANAGEMENT AND COMPLEX CIVIL LITIGATION, 2e

Michael Legg

Greatly expanded since its first edition published 11 years ago, this book is a valuable and highly practical resource for all those involved in starting or running complex litigation and for those adjudicating such disputes. It examines the tools available to the modern-day judge for dealing with crucial aspects of complex civil litigation and addresses the overarching purpose that litigation is to be conducted in a manner which achieves justice while minimising cost and delay.

SEDDON ON DEEDS, 2e

Nicholas Seddon

This book is the definitive Australian text on the law as it applies to the use of deeds by practitioners. It's about the technicalities of putting a deed together. Deeds are used by practitioners for a variety of purposes and it's easy to get the mechanics wrong. This book can help steer the practitioner to a successful outcome.

WORK HEALTH AND SAFETY REGULATION IN AUSTRALIA

Richard Johnstone, Michael Tooma

Written by an experienced academic labour lawyer and a leading work health and safety legal practitioner, this title is a valuable resource for practitioners working in the fast-developing area of labour law. Over the past decade work health and safety law in Australia has undergone major reform, with all but one of the Australian jurisdictions adopting the Model Work Health and Safety Act 2010. It provides a historical and policy context to the law, outlines practical issues, elucidates its practical operation, and critically analyses its provisions.

ZINES AND STELLIOS'S THE HIGH COURT AND THE CONSTITUTION, 7e

James Stellios

It has been seven years since the last update to Professor Zines's classic book on Australian constitutional law. In that time the High Court has handed down a range of important decisions transforming, extending and developing existing constitutional law principles. The new seventh edition, by Professor James Stellios, has been extensively updated and revised to analyse and critique the High Court's jurisprudence over that period.

SPOTLIGHT ON AUTHORS

NEIL WILLIAMS SC AND ALISON HAMMOND Learning to Litigate: A Guide for Young Lawyers

'Given its subject matter, the conception of this book is quite brilliant, with its authors at either end of their respective professional careers (if I can put that delicately). On the one hand, Neil Williams SC, highly distinguished barrister and the leader of the public law Bar in New South Wales for many years; on the other hand, Alison Hammond who still falls into that category affectionately known as a 'baby barrister', although undoubtedly a precocious one of whom great things may be expected. Thus, the book benefits from two different perspectives ...

Learning to Litigate is ... an immensely practical book, full of insight and invaluable nuggets of wisdom and advice. I thoroughly recommend it especially but not only to young practitioners and those thinking of coming to the Bar.'

– The Hon A S Bell, Chief Justice of New South Wales launching Learning to Litigate Feb 2023

MOHAMMUD JAAMAE HAFEEZ-BAIG AND JORDAN ENGLISH The Law of Tracing

'In the new Law of Tracing, the authors aim to meet two challenges: to develop a general theoretical account of tracing and a justification for it. Hafeez-Baig and English also produce a comprehensive account of the low-level rules of tracing in both general and particular circumstances which can be considered a third fundamental aim of the book: setting out the law of tracing. ... Its clarity, attention to detail and insightful analysis makes it a valuable addition both to the academic debate and to the practitioner's toolbox.'

PAM STEWART AND ANITA STUHMCKE Australian Principles of Tort Law, 5e

'Australian Principles of Tort Law deals with the most commonly litigated torts in our legal system – intentional torts, negligence and nuisance are the primary topics. Negligence, remedies and civil liability legislation, in particular, are given an exhaustive and excellent treatment ... Now in its fifth edition, the book has evidently been a labour of love for Stewart and Stuhmcke for almost two decades since its first edition in 2002. The period of time this book has been in production has allowed the authors to assemble useful passages of judgments to demonstrate principles that are addressed. It is a great book to have on the shelf for this reason.'

DAVID BRENNAN Copyright Law

'Since its enactment more than 50 years ago, the 1968 Act has moved significantly from the classic structure of copyright laws. This is the product of judicial decisions and much legislative activity. The busy practitioner often will be presented on short notice with copyright disputes and needs an authoritative text to be ready at hand. In those law schools where the subject is taught to undergraduates the students need access to a stimulating study of the statute and case law. This book answers their needs. The author has an engaging literary style which leads the readers through the conceptual thickets of copyright law. The publisher also is to be congratulated for the preparation which has gone into the production of the book and its printing in Australia.'

– The Hon William Gummow AC, Australian Bar Review, Vol 51, 2022.

The Federation Press has had a long relationship with Canadian legal publisher Irwin Law. We became their Australian agent because of the similarities between us. Like The Federation Press, Irwin Law is a small independent publisher committed to exploring areas of the law in a thoughtful and intellectually rigorous way. Here are just a few of their recent releases.

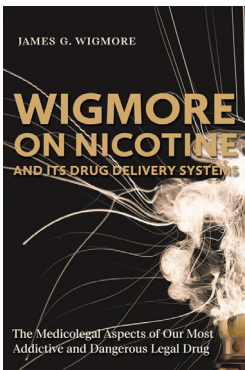

FUNDAMENTAL LAW FOR JOURNALISTS

Mark Bourrie

A guide through the many arcane and sometimes obtuse legal concepts journalists will come across in their work. This new book is a primer on criminal and civil law, the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, public law, legal research tools, and basic procedure. It's also useful for editors, students and others who are politically involved.
